Individuals must wear face coverings over the nose and mouth and maintain 3 to 6 feet of social distancing from another person not in the same household.

The virus that causes COVID-19 can be spread to others by infected persons who have few or no symptoms.

Even if an infected person is only mildly ill, the people they spread it to may become seriously ill or even die, especially if that person is 65 or older with pre-existing health conditions that place them at higher risk. Because of the hidden nature of this threat, everyone should rigorously follow the practices specified in these recommendations. The virus that causes COVID-19 is still circulating in our communities. We should continue to observe practices that protect everyone, including those who are most vulnerable.

Please note, public health guidance cannot anticipate every unique situation. Individuals should stay informed and take actions based on common sense and wise judgment that will protect health and support economic revitalization.

Health recommendations for individuals:

Individuals should, to the extent possible, minimize in-person contact with others not in the individual's household. Minimizing in-person contact includes maintaining 3 to 6 feet of separation from individuals. When maintaining 3 to 6 feet of separation is not feasible, other methods should be utilized to slow the spread of COVID-19, such as wearing masks, washing or sanitizing hand frequently, and avoiding sharing utensils or other common objects.
